

Stacy Tubonemi

I like to describe myself as a goal driven, ambitious and confident. Born in the U.S, I grew up in the United States, Nigeria and Liberia. I transferred to SMU in 2014 where I obtained my bachelor's degree in Finance in December of 2016. I then began to work for JP Morgan Chase as a rotational business analyst in their Chase Leadership Development Program. Upon completion of the program at Chase in July of 2019, I enrolled back at SMU to pursue my MBA with concentrations in Finance, Strategy and Entrepreneurship. I am the President of the National Association of Black Accountants (NABA) SMU Chapter. I am currently spending the summer, working from home as an MBA intern at AT&T in their Finance Leadership Development Program.
